When someone gets hurt on the job, the workers' compensation system is often adept at zeroing in on an injury and delivering timely care. But that well-intentioned focus on a patient's physical bruises can make it easy to miss the mental ones, which might be harder to spot. Today, a comprehensive approach that identifies and meets an injured worker's needs is more important than ever because the coronavirus pandemic is blanketing everyday life with added stresses that threaten to imperil a worker's recovery. During this webinar we will discuss:

- Identifying injured workers who need mental health intervention
- Building and implementing clinically sound treatment plans
- Utilizing a network of proven mental health providers
- Constructing an effective communication strategy with the provider
- Engaging the injured worker in their recovery and return to work
